

WOLVERINE

Retail & Warehousing Markets

You want to deliver products to people...

... We want to provide protection from the unexpected so you can.

Retail and warehousing settings have particular needs. They often contain racks of product and temporary walled structures within their footprint. Their layout and contents are constantly changing, and therefore their needs may be difficult to pin-point. They are also unique in that no two retail outlets are the same and they all carry a different variety of products, equipment, and/or contents. These types of structures encourage the quick spread of fire if not controlled in an incident. Implementing fire protection systems allows retail and warehousing locations to experience less water damage to property and products than when a fire department must intervene and offers the possibility for lower insurance rates.

Wolverine Fire Protection has been servicing customers in the retail and warehousing sector for over 56 years. We are able to customize a fire alarm and/or suppression system to meet a building's unique needs and stand behind our commitment to quality. Wolverine Fire Protection Co., as a full service design build fire protection contractor, also has the ability to staff each level of need that you may have. This includes wet/dry suppression, clean agent/special hazards, detection, alarm, and releasing. Our staff includes engineers, design technicians, and fitter foreman/project managers with the ability to field installation crews comprised of union tradesmen. Our approach to delivering design build, on an aggressive schedule is based on the concepts of the integrated project delivery and focused solely on what is best for the overall project.
